

Hilly Descartes Region

Apollo-16's Landing Site Area Is 'Part of Primitive Moon'

By Stuart Auerbach

HOUSTON, April 20 (UPI)—"This time," Farouk el-Baz, who teaches lunar geology to the astronauts, said, "we are going to a place that we don't know much about, which is good."

The place is the furrowed and hilly Descartes region, never before sampled by man.

Scientists hope to learn how and when Descartes's surrounding highlands region, which covers 3 percent of the moon, was formed, and how the moon's lowlands and mountains were created in the satellite's early, volcanic phase.

The Descartes region is the highest formation on the near side of the moon. Its tallest peaks are a half-mile higher than Mount Hadley at the Apollo-15 landing site and four miles above the maria (waterless seas) where most of America's moon landings took place.

Similar to Andes
"We kind of think of it as landing on the top of the Andes Mountains," Capt. John W. Young, the Apollo-15 commander, said.

To the ground-based scientists who eagerly await the 195 pounds of moon rocks and soil that the Apollo-16 crew expects to bring back, exploring Descartes is more like climbing Mount Everest for the first time.

"By going to this site," Dr. Noel Hinners, a space agency geologist, said, "we are sampling a tremendous area of the lunar highlands and we expect to have a much better sample than you would expect by just looking at the landing site itself."

Comdr. Thomas K. Mattingly, who will be circling the moon while Capt. Young and Lt. Col. Charles M. Duke pounce on its surface, said, "We think that perhaps in this highland material we're seeing what the original surface of the moon may have looked like."

"It's characteristic of the back side, and many of the same forms are shown. So when we look at Apollo-16, we're trying to look at what will be something of the primitive moon."

Primitive or not, the Descartes landing site on a hilly plain named Cayley for 19th-century English mathematician Arthur Cayley—is clearly different from anything man has landed on in the four previous lunar landings.

Volcanic Formation
It was formed, scientists believe, from the volcanic action of the moon's early days—about 3.6 billion to 4 billion years ago. This was the most active time in the lunar highlands.

The lava welled up from within the moon—piling up to form the highlands, the 7,000-foot-high mountains that ring the Cayley Plains and the domes, cones, hummocks and furrows that mark its mooncape.

There were probably two different lava flows, about 400 million years apart, that created the different features. But no one is sure, and finding out how the highlands evolved is a prime objective of the mission.

U.S., Moscow Lay Plans

MOSCOW, April 20 (AP)—A White House technical advance party began discussions today at the Soviet Foreign Ministry to work out details for President Nixon's summit meeting here next month. An embassy spokesman said Mr. Nixon's military assistant, Brig. Gen. Brent Scowcroft, was expected to establish a work schedule during today's meeting and get down to specific consultations tomorrow.

These highlands have not been modified by the large impacts that created the maria. This means that the astronauts will be sampling material "that hasn't really moved much from where it came from," Mr. el-Baz said.

Col. Duke and Capt. Young will have a chance to sample four different lunar formations during their three lunar explorations. They were to have explored the moon's surface for 21 hours—2 hours and 27 minutes longer than Apollo-15—and covered 15 1/2 miles in their Lunar Rover—about two miles less than the Apollo-15 crew.

The first area is the Cayley Plains, where Col. Duke and Capt. Young were to land their lunar lander Orion near a pair of small craters called Double Spot. Except for the maria, the Cayley Plain is the largest single identifiable unit on the near side of the moon, covering 7 percent of the side that always faces the earth.

Col. Duke and Capt. Young were to explore two young and prominent bright-rayed craters in the Cayley Plains. They were to go to the edge of South Ray Crater on their second exploration, and, by picking up rocks along its rays, hope to get samples from as far as 640 feet beneath the surface.

North Ray Crater, which was to have been sampled during the third exploration, has distinct layers on its east wall that could provide evidence of early build-up of the Cayley Plains—as much as 400 million years earlier than the buildup that created the present surface.

There are also two different types of Descartes highland formations. One, to the south, is Stone Mountain—a bright, hilly, furrowed unit that extends 60 miles south to Descartes Crater. It appears to have been formed by lava that was more liquid and less sticky than the lava that flooded the maria.

Col. Duke and Capt. Young were to have roamed 2 1/2 miles south from the landing site tomorrow and climb in their rover as much as 1,000 feet up Stone Mountain, seeking an outcropping that lets them know they are sampling true Descartes material.

Comdr. Mattingly said the three astronauts were advised to drink more potassium-enriched orange juice to make sure their body levels of the chemical were high enough.

"Your potassium levels are running a little low and we recommend you drink more orange juice," said capsule communicator Don Peterson. "You've got a long day ahead, so we recommend you eat more food."

"Be advised we're taking extra orange juice with potassium this morning," Comdr. Mattingly reported.

Apollo-15's moon explorers suffered from irregular heartbeats during their mission last summer and doctors believe it was because their diet was too low in potassium. As a result, the Apollo-16 food is heavily laced with the PARIS, April 20 (UPI)—The Harvard Business School will open a European campus in 1973, Laurie E. Fouraker, dean of the school, said today.

Mr. Fouraker declined to say where the branch campus would be situated, but indicated that it would be in a Common Market country and near the West German border.

been scheduled to make a single orbit of the moon alone and then use its powerful descent engine to slow down and drop to a landing.

"We're sailing free," Capt. Young reported as the separated spacecraft came around the edge of the moon. They had separation minutes earlier on the back side, out of radio communication.

"The only thing bad is that I got a lap full of orange juice," the mission commander quipped. "The astronauts awoke today 'chugging hard.' Comdr. Mattingly said, getting ready for their big day."

Eager for their surface adventure, the two moon walkers donned their space suits early and climbed through a tunnel from the command ship to Orion 40 minutes ahead of schedule.

During an earlier dress rehearsal in space, Capt. Young had trouble closing a zipper on Col. Duke's space suit. But the mission commander reported no such difficulty today.

Apollo-16 rocketed into lunar

"This area has a much blockier, jumbled appearance than in the photographs," said Col. Duke.

Mr. Ledogar, recalling that the controversy over the understanding began within days of its announcement, reiterated the U.S. position that Mr. Harrison had agreed privately with North Vietnam that the United States would not publicly state its terms.

Mr. Ledogar also said that the United States saw "no change" in Mr. Thuy's statement on resumption of negotiations. He noted recent statements by Secretary of State William F. Rogers and Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird that rejected new talks while the Communist offensive continued in South Vietnam.

In answering newsmen's questions, Mr. Thuy said that if the United States agreed to resume the stalled weekly sessions next Thursday, then Hanoi would no longer demand prior cessation of the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam.

He also suggested that resumption of the weekly talks—unilaterally suspended by President Nixon on March 23—would allow the formal conference to "examine the possibility of private meetings."

Such secret meetings held in regular sessions would be held in Hanoi, he said, and would have allowed whatever little progress has been made in narrowing still-gaping differences.

At first glance, Mr. Thuy's new formulation today seemed designed to meet U.S. demands that the formal weekly sessions could resume only when the Communists stopped using them for "propaganda" and proved their desire for "serious" negotiations.

U.S. officials have stated that North Vietnam has ample private channels at its disposal to signal such a change of heart—an indirect way of showing American distaste for making such moves in public.

Still the United States is known to believe that only secret talks can produce the proper atmosphere for real progress—in contrast to the stalemate in the 147 weekly sessions held since January, 1969.

Perhaps significantly, Mr. Thuy no longer specifically promised today that Le Duc Tho would fly to Paris if the United States agreed to resume the peace talks.

Mr. Tho, a ranking Hanoi Politburo member, has been associated with a series of secret talks in Paris, most recently those involving Henry A. Kissinger, the White House adviser on national security.

Discussing the resumption of secret talks, Mr. Thuy said, "It is necessary first to hold plenary meetings . . . in order to be able to discuss the possibility of private meetings."

The notes in question were mailed out to some 100 deputies in all political parties. Mr. Barzel, one of the recipients, brought them to Mr. Brandt's attention eight days ago with a request for clarification.

The opposition has been demanding, and the government refusing it, insight into the notes covering the treaty. The government says it has done more than its duty in informing the opposition and accusing it of bad faith by rejecting an offer to send representatives to Moscow with the treaty negotiators.

Hanoi Drops Precondition For Parleys

It No Longer Insists U.S. Stop Raids First on Hanoi's constant rejection of any "reciprocity" between the United States, viewed as the "aggressor," and itself, viewed as a victim acting out of "legitimate self-defense."

Mr. Thuy conceded under questioning that the minutes of Mr. Harrison's purported statements were the North Vietnamese version since both sides' negotiators had agreed not to keep official minutes.

The North Vietnamese negotiator said that the United States originally had conditions for a bombing halt: "restoration of the Demilitarized Zone along the border between the two Vietnams," "military build-up on both sides," "starting substantive talks" including both the Viet Cong and South Vietnam and "no major attacks against Saigon, Hue and Da Nang."

But the North Vietnamese said, the United States finally dropped these conditions. Mr. Thuy quoted Mr. Harrison as saying on Oct. 2, 1969, "We recognize your statement about no conditions, therefore, we are quite ready to assure you that, in any statement on the cessation of the bombing, the U.S. government will not refer to any word such as the word 'conditional.'"

Asked why the North Vietnamese had not insisted on agreed and written minutes, Mr. Thuy said in effect that they had trusted the "famous (American) diplomat" as the "representative of the U.S. President whose declarations had value."

Mr. Ledogar, recalling that the controversy over the understanding began within days of its announcement, reiterated the U.S. position that Mr. Harrison had agreed privately with North Vietnam that the United States would not publicly state its terms.

The Answers, More or Less, To Questions About the War

By Max Frankel

WASHINGTON, April 20 (UPI)—Of all the many questions raised here in recent days about the current U.S. role in the Vietnam war, perhaps a dozen best summarize the major concerns of members of Congress and other critics.

The answers suggested below are what appear to be the government's composite replies, drawn not from any single source but rather from the general testimony of Secretary of State William F. Rogers and Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird, and from the private comments of other top administration officials.

Q. What is the justification for any continuing American involvement in the Indochina war?

A. To redeem an already costly American commitment to protect South Vietnam against military conquest; to protect the program of gradual American withdrawal so that the Saigon government can survive under a political system of the South Vietnamese people's choosing; to force the return of American prisoners of war, and, through such a generally "honorable" end of the involvement to demonstrate the fidelity of American commitments to other allies and dependent nations.

Q. What is the purpose of intensified American bombing in South and North Vietnam?

A. To protect the remaining American troops in the war zone; to protect the program of troop withdrawals; to help the South Vietnamese resist a major frontal attack; to render more difficult or even impossible further onslaughts in the months to come; to retaliate for violation of a 1955 "understanding" forbidding troops to cross the Demilitarized Zone; to demonstrate the continuing U.S. power that can be applied in the war, and to neutralize some of the advanced equipment supplied to Hanoi by the Soviet Union.

Q. Why bomb Hanoi and Haiphong at this time, and why will the bombing of North Vietnam be more effective now than it was between 1965 and 1968?

A. Because the current, highly mechanized North Vietnamese attack differs from past enemy offensives; because the tanks, personnel carriers, mobile missiles and other weapons and vehicles are more dependent on fuel and replacement that could be moved quickly to the southern front areas, and because raids against the main supply depots in the major cities inflict the greatest damage on those essential items.

Q. Why was Congress not consulted on the escalation?

A. Because the President alone determines tactics and needs surprise when he strikes.

Q. Why not protect all U.S. troops by withdrawing them immediately?

A. Because air support and other logistic and advisory services are still needed by the South Vietnamese; because some combat troops are still needed to protect the U.S. bases, and because the presence of some troops will be used to negotiate the release of U.S. prisoners of war.

Q. If "Vietnamization" is working, why do the South Vietnamese need such massive U.S. air power while the North Vietnamese fight without anything comparable?

A. The first objective of Vietnamization was to relieve Americans of the high casualties resulting from ground combat operations. Now the South Vietnamese are beginning to assume logistic and tactical air power, but this gives them a capacity to fight only inside their own half of Vietnam and not reach up to the supply routes and centers in the North. But the Russians have equipped the North Vietnamese for offensive operations far from home base.

Q. Does "Vietnamization" provide for the end of U.S. strategic and tactical air strikes?

A. The Saigon government is to assume tactical air responsibilities on an unrevoked schedule, but massive U.S. strikes against enemy troop concentrations and supplies will be conducted whenever the Saigon forces appear to need help. For the time being, nothing is ruled out except an increase in U.S. troop strength, and the use of nuclear weapons.

Q. What would happen if the United States stood aside and let North and South Vietnam fight it out?

A. Current estimates are that South Vietnam's forces would suffer serious reverses, perhaps even a rout, particularly in the region around Saigon and in the Central Highlands. U.S. air power has been less directly necessary (or useful) in defending northern sectors of South Vietnam.

Q. Is Protection Needed?

A. The diminished number of U.S. troops really need protection?

A. It is thought that major North Vietnamese breakthroughs would cause U.S. bases to be overrun, but in any case the protection of American troops is the only constitutional authority available to the President for military operations he is conducting.

Q. Why is the administration taxing the Soviet Union with responsibility for Hanoi's offensives?

A. Because Moscow should bear some responsibility for offensives made possible by its arms, even if it does not plan them; because a policy of counsel of Soviet restraint may still be necessary to diminish the fighting and negotiate an end of the war; and because the United States and the Soviet Union cannot expect to profit from détente and agreements in some areas while they induce military challenge to each other and their allies elsewhere.

Q. Is not American help to South Vietnam vastly greater than Soviet help to North Vietnam?

A. Yes, but the U.S. help is for the purpose of defending South Vietnam while Soviet help is for the purpose of invasion and conquest.

Q. How serious are the U.S. threats of mining Haiphong harbor or otherwise blockading North Vietnam against Soviet and other foreign supply ships?

A. Those measures are recognized as extreme steps that would have only long-range effect on the battle in South Vietnam while immediately confronting the Russians and other naval suppliers with a direct U.S. challenge. But they have not been ruled out and will not be ruled out until there is evidence of greater "restraint" in Hanoi.

greatest damage on those essential items.

Chinese Giant Pandas Find a Home in U.S.

By Nan Robertson
WASHINGTON, April 20 (UPI)—The capital's newest celebrities were at home and receiving today, but were so busy gobbling up the refreshments that they didn't have time to notice the guests.

The first visitor to pay a call on China's giant pandas at the National Zoo was Mrs. Richard

M. Nixon, who giggled her way through introductions conducted in front of thick, panda-proof glass that separated her from the cage of the pair.

From then on, the public streamed into the panda house, standing 10-deep to gaze at the first pandas seen in this country in 21 years.

Unquestionably, the star was the female, Ling-Ling. At 136 pounds, she is almost twice the size of the male, Hsing-Hsing (pronounced shing-shing), because she has spent more time in captivity and had more nutritious meals.

Ling-Ling is also totally uninhibited. She hung herself seductively on her stairstep log sofa like a furry Mae West while waving one hind-paw languidly in the air and daintily nibbling on a piece of honey-spread toast.

After Mrs. Nixon and a party of officials from Peking and the Smithsonian Institution had passed on, the female panda picked up her pan of rice and soybean gruel like a small child, sitting on her hindquarters, and licked it clean.

This morning, Ling-Ling began to defoliate part of a grove of bamboo set in a half-dozen tubs around her room. The bamboo, grown on the zoo grounds, is a panda staple in the wild and in captivity.

Meantime, the 74-pound Hsing-Hsing, in an identical panda cage next door, was finishing up his gruel on all fours.

"He's a little shy," said Larry R. Collins, who is overseeing the team of four keepers taking care of the two animals.

As for Ling-Ling, "She's a real clown," Mr. Collins said.

The keepers have been warned not to get too friendly with the pandas. The reason, according to the zoo's information officer, Billie Hamlet, is that the London zoo's female panda, Chi-Chi, spent so much time with her keeper that she developed a crush and "became convinced he was her mate," Mrs. Hamlet said.

BARELY ENOUGH—Ling-Ling, the female giant panda, eating from a bowl at Washington National Zoo yesterday. She already weighs 136 pounds and as such is almost twice as heavy as the male, Hsing-Hsing. They are both about the same age, 18 months.

Flanigan Balks at Questions

Senate Panel Ends Inquiry Of Kleindienst Nomination

By Robert Siner

WASHINGTON, April 20 (UPI)—The Senate Judiciary Committee today voted to end its investigation into the fitness of Richard G. Kleindienst to be attorney general in light of the billion-dollar settlement of an anti-trust suit against ITT after over a month of hearings.

On a 7-to-7 vote, a motion by committee Democrats to continue the hearings was rejected as the panel reaffirmed a decision made two weeks ago to end the hearings and file a report on the nomination within one week.

The committee, meeting in an hour-long closed session, also defeated, 9 to 5, a move to broaden the scope of the hearings.

The investigation began March 2 after columnist Jack Anderson charged that the ITT settlement was linked to a pledge of $400,000 to underwrite the costs of the 1972 Republican National Convention by an ITT subsidiary. Mr. Anderson also accused Mr. Kleindienst and other top Republicans of being involved in the deal.

Three days before the story broke, the committee had unanimously approved the Kleindienst nomination, but President Nixon's choice for the top Justice Department post asked that the hearings be reopened so that he could answer the charges.

During the morning open session today, White House aide Peter M. Flanigan declined to answer questions by committee liberals about his contacts with International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. officials concerning the ITT settlement on grounds that such questions violated the ground rules under which he agreed to testify.

Earlier this week, the White House and the committee worked out a compromise under which Mr. Flanigan would testify in open session so long as the questioning was limited to his knowledge of the selection of San Diego as the convention site, his participation in two meetings at which ITT officials were present and his hiring of financial consultant Richard J. Ramsden, upon whose report the ITT settlement was based, for the Justice Department.

However, committee liberals said at the time they would not be bound by such limitations and during today's hearings continually raised questions about Mr. Flanigan's contacts with ITT officials and his knowledge of the status of the antitrust case.

Sustained by Eastland

Mr. Flanigan refused to answer these questions and he was sustained in his refusal by committee chairman James O. Eastland, D. Miss.

The White House aide admitted during testimony that he did give Mr. Ramsden a report prepared by ITT on the consequences of the government forcing the company to divest itself of Hartford Fire Insurance

Peter Flanigan

Co., but insisted he in no way attempted to influence the Wall Street consultant's report.

He told the committee that he got the report from Richard W. McLaren, the former head of the Justice Department's Anti-trust Division who was in charge of the case, and not from ITT.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D. N.C., asked if Mr. Flanigan had "any interest personal or political in what kind of conclusion Ramsden came to."

Sen. Roman Hruska, R., Neb., objected to the question but the presidential assistant replied that he did not. Many of the questions asked Mr. Flanigan brought objections from Republican committee members, most of which were sustained by chairman Eastland.

Sen. Philip A. Hart, D. Mich., asked if, other than the two meetings at the attorney general's office, anyone "on behalf of ITT expressed concern to you about the effect of the Hartford divestiture?"

The White House aide began to reply, then stopped and said: "I regret that under the limitations voted by the committee, I am not permitted to answer that question."

Tax Credit Urged For Nonpublic School Tuition

WASHINGTON, April 20 (AP).—A presidential panel today urged that the government help rescue troubled parochial schools by granting tax credits to parents for tuition payments and straight tuition grants to welfare families using nonpublic schools.

In a 59-page report presented to President Nixon, the four-member group set forth these and other recommendations that are certain to create controversy if only because of the church-state issue.

Mr. Nixon is on record as favoring aid to parochial and other nonpublic schools but has said that programs must meet constitutional tests. The report is expected to form the basis for administration consideration of the issue.

The group, the President's Committee on Nonpublic Education, told Mr. Nixon that it had looked carefully into the constitutional issue and was convinced "that, although direct aid to nonpublic schools is prohibited, aid to parents and to children will pass judicial muster."

Johnson's Doctor Leaves

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, April 20 (UPI).—Lyndon B. Johnson's heart specialist examined the former President yesterday, issued a report saying he "has improved in a very gratifying manner" and then returned to his home in Atlanta. Dr. J. Willis Hurst, the doctor who has treated Mr. Johnson following each of his heart attacks, flew from Atlanta Monday when Mr. Johnson experienced some extra heart beats.

Peking Pays scant Note to U.S. Senators

PEKING, April 20 (Reuters).—The U.S. Senate leaders, Hugh Scott and Mike Mansfield, joined Chinese officials today in keeping secret their activities during their three-week visit.

Apparently embarrassed at being host to two U.S. senators when the United States is bombing North Vietnam, China has said little about the visit.

Sen. Mansfield, D. Mont., announced through a Chinese intermediary that neither he nor Sen. Scott, R. Pa., would be meeting correspondents or making any public statements while in China.

The Communist party newspaper, People's Daily, carried only a brief inside-page notice about the dinner for the senators given last night by the president of the Chinese Academy of Sciences, Kuo Mo-jou. Another inside-page item referred briefly to President Nixon's seating at the White House with the Chinese table tennis team.

Until the recent heavy fighting in Vietnam such news would normally have been on the front page of the People's Daily.

The two senators, accompanied by their wives, arrived here from Hanoi this week. The Americans are living in a state guest house and travel to their appointments in a fleet of vehicles escorted by Chinese officials.

Their trip was arranged during President Nixon's visit here in February.

Space Balloon Splits

ADELAIDE, Australia, April 20 (AP).—An attempt to fly a giant astronomy balloon at Alice Springs failed yesterday when it developed a large split just before takeoff. The project's goal was to probe fluctuating X-rays that reach the earth's upper atmosphere from outer space.

Benefit for School

Chinese Play Table Tennis In UN Trusteeship Chamber

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., April 20 (AP).—The traveling table tennis team from the People's Republic of China started last night in the first—and probably last—matches ever to be played in the UN Trusteeship Council Chamber.

The Chinese beat players from the UN Table Tennis Club in men's and women's singles matches and then played a women's doubles and two men's singles matches among themselves.

The table stood on a cramped temporary plywood floor inside the six-nation council's horseshoe-shaped table. Spectators sat in delegates' seats and in the press and public galleries.

The exhibition was a benefit for the UN International School. Not all the 650 seats were filled—but 650 tickets had been sold at prices ranging from $5 to $50.

N.Y. Court Bars Firm From Doing Students' Work

NEW YORK, April 20 (UPI).—A firm specializing in writing term papers for college students has been ordered to stop the practice on the grounds that it encouraged "intellectual dishonesty and cheating." A state official said the order would set a national precedent.

State Supreme Court Judge Abraham J. Gellinoff issued a temporary injunction Tuesday prohibiting Term Papers, Inc., of New York from "transacting business as sellers of essays, theses, term papers or other school assignments."

"The business the defendants are conducting is morally wrong," Judge Gellinoff said. "It subverts the learning process and encourages intellectual dishonesty and cheating."

The sale of such papers is a "nationwide multimillion-dollar business," Stephen Mindell, deputy head of the state attorney general's Fraud Bureau, said. He described Term Papers, Inc. as one of the biggest suppliers of term papers in the New York area.

for an estimated gross of $12,150.

Chuang Tse-tung, who is heading the team on its U.S. tour, sounded the only political vote when he recalled that the General Assembly last Oct. 25 adopted a resolution "to restore all the lawful rights of the People's Republic of China in the United Nations and to expel forthwith representatives of the Chiang Kai-shek clique."

He said that his group was "very happy" to visit the United States and had received "the warm welcome and the kind hospitality of the American people and the American players."

Then Lin Hui-ching, world women's singles champion, beat Miss Marguerite Burnett, a UN player from Guyana.

Ho Tzu-pin of China then defeated George Braithwaite, a UN player of U.S. nationality and Guyanese origin.

The play was fast throughout, with many returns from far corners that were loudly applauded.

The playing space was far less than regulation. Both sides had complained privately that it was too small.

Chakravarti V. Narasimhan, UN under secretary-general, who is chairman of the school's Board of Trustees, apologized for the "makeshift" arrangements afterward. He thanked the Chinese and announced the presentation of a small UN stamp collection to each player.

Unionist Denies Guilt In Yablonski Killing

PITTSBURGH, April 20 (AP).—A United Mine Workers organizer pleaded not guilty yesterday to federal conspiracy charges stemming from the slaying of Joseph Yablonski, a union insurgent, and his wife and daughter. William Jackson Frater, 53, of Lafayette, Tenn., entered the plea during arraignment. He was returned to the Allegheny county jail under a $200,000 bond.

Mr. Frater is among six persons charged with the slayings on Dec. 31, 1969, less than a month after Mr. Yablonski lost a bid to unseat the union president, W. A. Boyle.

Your Captain wishes you a pleasant flight.

To most people, a BEA Captain is a friendly voice over the aircraft address system. But there's a few things your Captain has to do before he speaks to you. Let's take them in order.

First, he has to spend two years at flying school, followed by six months at the BEA Training School, where he flies 80 hours on the Flight Simulator. Then he begins service as a Second Officer. About four years later, he'll be a First Officer.

Nine or ten years after that—if he's really good, and we don't make it easy—he can become a BEA Captain.

Before each take-off from London, he has a 30-minute briefing and passes it on to his crew. He's responsible for exhaustive checks of the plane and personnel—164 dials in the Trident cockpit alone. He takes off.

Only then can your Captain say: "Ladies and Gentlemen, this is your Captain, wishing you all a very pleasant flight."

Your Captain wishes you a pleasant flight.

Otto Griebing, Beloved Clown in America

NEW YORK, April 20 (UPI).—Otto Griebing, the German-born pantomimist who was considered America's leading clown, died in a hospital here after a brief illness yesterday, nine days before his 76th birthday.

Mr. Griebing, a circus performer for more than 60 years, had been appearing daily as a star of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum and Bailey show at Madison Square Garden until he entered the hospital 10 days ago.

"If you find yourself able to make people laugh, it is God's gift," he said earlier this year when asked to comment on his lifetime of clowning. "You have to do everything from the bottom of your heart."

One of his best-known gags was to appear with a block of ice and wander through the audience looking for someone to deliver it to as the block melted to the size of an ice cube.

Bareback Rider
Mr. Griebing came to the United States when he was 14 and was apprenticed to a bareback riding act with the Ringling Bros. circus. He worked as a rider for 10 years and then decided to try his hand at clowning. Life Magazine described him last year as "the best American clown."

"Otto Griebing was a rare and very special person," said Irvin Feld, president and producer of the circus. "The American public knew him as one of the funniest and most touching clowns of all time.

"We at Ringling Bros. and Barnum and Bailey also knew him as a gentle, kind man whose sense of humor and outlook on the world around him was admired by all. He will be greatly missed."

Mr. Griebing is survived by his wife, Anna, and a son and two daughters.

Magdalen Flexner

WASHINGTON, April 20 (WP).—Magdalen G.H. Flexner, 64, a retired Foreign Service officer, died here Tuesday of cancer.

Mrs. Flexner's last foreign post was as consul-general in Bordeaux. She had served as consul in Cardiff, Wales, cultural affairs officer in the U.S. Embassy in London, and deputy U.S. permanent representative to UNESCO in Paris.

She also served as the State Department representative with the American delegation that negotiated the international treaty for the protection of cultural objects in the event of armed conflict.

Manuel Gomez Morin

MEXICO CITY, April 20 (AP).—Manuel Gomez Morin, 75, founder of Mexico's leading opposition political party and former assistant finance minister, died yesterday of pneumonia.

The founder of the National Action party, he also served on the board of directors of the Banco de Mexico, the government central bank.

Msgr. Carlo Montini

BOLOGNA, Italy, April 20 (UPI).—Msgr. Carlo Montini, 68, a cousin of Pope Paul VI and substitute vicar-general of the Pope's hometown of Brescia, collapsed and died today at the Bologna train station.

Police said he collapsed while walking in a passage beneath the station and was pronounced dead on arrival at the station's medical office. No cause of death was given, but police said Msgr. Montini apparently suffered a heart attack.

Billy Burke

CLEARWATER, Fla., April 20 (UPI).—Golf pro Billy Burke, 69, who won the 1951 U.S. Open after a record 72-hole playoff, died here yesterday after a long illness.

Mr. Burke, a member of the PGA Hall of Fame, and George Von Elm tied at the end of regulation play in the U.S. Open and after a 36-hole playoff the following day they still were tied. Mr. Burke claimed the title the next day with a one-stroke victory after another 36 holes of play.

Milan Slum Dwellers In Battle at City Hall

MILAN, April 20 (UPI).—Slum dwellers demanding better housing stormed the Milan City Hall today and smashed furniture, windows, microphones and statues. Police removed the demonstrators from the building after a fight and arrested more than 50 persons, mostly women. Two women and several policemen suffered bruises.

Doubts Slow Sales of Soft Contact Lenses

By Nancy L. Ross

WASHINGTON, April 20 (WP).—When soft contact lenses were introduced a year ago, they were hailed as the answer to irritation and discomfort often felt by wearers of hard lenses. During 1971, the common stock of Bausch & Lomb, the sole government-authorized manufacturer of soft lenses, skyrocketed from a low of 48 to 191.

Last week, the stock was selling at 113. The current issue of Newsweek cites Bausch & Lomb as the second coldest stock of the winter on the New York Stock Exchange. It went down 37.6 percent, shaken, the magazine said by profit-takers "as well as recurring doubts about the size of the contact-lens market and concern that the lenses harbor germs."

As if that economic reality weren't enough to make B&L's eyes smart, Consumers Union last week came out with a lengthy report largely unfavorable to soft lenses. The nonprofit organization urged potential buyers to wait until research could eliminate more of the lenses' drawbacks.

In addition to possible contamination, CU listed the expense and limited visual efficacy of the lenses as chief drawbacks. B & L's "Softlens" division manager in Rochester, N.Y., John R. Williams, declined to comment on the article at this time, but said that the company would issue a statement in a week or 10 days.

A soft lens is made of a liquid-absorbing plastic that is brittle as a cornflake when dry but soft and pliable in the moistened eye. Besides being more comfortable than hard lenses, the soft lenses are more likely to keep out foreign bodies and less apt to fall out accidentally.

Soft lenses currently available to the public correct nearsightedness only, and anyone with more than a mild degree of astigmatism may expect some visual problems with soft lenses, the article says. However, it notes that many persons are willing to give up maximum vision correction for comfort or a better cosmetic effect.

Thus far, only about 10,000 soft lenses have been sold, whereas 750,000 Americans buy hard lenses each year. There have been no reports of serious infection to healthy eyes. "A few cases of conjunctivitis, yes, but no more than among people who don't wear lenses," the article said.

CU consultants, questioning eye-care practitioners who had fitted close to 2,000 sets of soft lenses, found that prescribers of bacterial contamination caused by soft lenses tended to be exaggerated. However, they noted that an ideal method of sterilization is still lacking.

They warned that soft lenses should not be worn by women with long fingernails or heavy eye make-up. Also, eyes must be kept closed while using bakramy. Persons with hay fever or other eye-irritating diseases should avoid them, as should pregnant women. The Food and Drug Administration has as yet found no ill effects on expectant mothers or newborn infants, but, as is its custom, the FDA warns against the use of any new drug or product by pregnant women until tests have proved there is no hazard involved.

U.S. Exhibit Guides Warned On Their Talks With Russians

By Murray Seeger

MOSCOW, April 20.—The young American guides traveling through Russia with a U.S. economic exhibit have been warned by their hosts against spreading "anti-Soviet propaganda."

Apparently concerned about the ability of the young Americans to discuss and debate in Russian with visitors to the exhibit, which opened in Tiflis, Georgia, in January, Soviet Chamber of Commerce officials asked to meet with the guides several days ago while the show was here in Moscow.

A spokesman for the host organization warned the guides that they were disseminating information considered to be "anti-Soviet." He asked them to stop their discussions of social and political issues with Soviet citizens.

The term "anti-Soviet propaganda" is used by the government to describe almost any information it considers against its interests. The definition covers Western publications and the Bible, for instance. The show, called "Research and Development: U.S.A.," closed in Moscow Tuesday and will reopen next month in Volgograd, an industrial city better known by its former name of Stalingrad.

Ignore Warning
The American guides, mostly recent graduates and young teachers specially recruited to spend six months with the show, resented the attempt to inhibit their conversations. They have decided among themselves to ignore the warning.

"We're not going to stop answering questions or stop telling the truth," one guide said.

The two dozen guides explain and demonstrate the appliances, technical instruments and gadgets on display. Much of their time is taken up by Russians who ask them about life in America and how it compares with life in the Soviet Union. Many of these talks have taken place outside the exhibit, since the guides, especially the girls, have been entertained almost nightly by young Russians.

"Every girl here has three or four single 'regulars,' guys who stand around all day at their exhibits," one guide said.

According to the guides, their Russian acquaintances have been interested mostly in American education, the cost of living, pay

Great Soviet Encyclopedia In English

WASHINGTON, April 20 (Reuters).—Crowell Collier & McMillan Inc. has signed an agreement with Soviet authorities to translate and market worldwide the 30-volume Great Soviet Encyclopedia.

Chairman Raymond Hagan said it was the largest Soviet-U.S. publishing deal in history. He emphasized that a very large part of the sales will stem from English-speaking countries outside the United States.

No financial details were disclosed, but a company official said the expected market would range between 3,000 and 10,000 subscribers after the entire series is completed in about seven years.

Preliminary Meetings Next Week

India and Pakistan to Begin Planning for Summit Talks

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan, April 20 (NYT).—India and Pakistan, victor and vanquished in the brief war in which Pakistan lost East Pakistan—now Bangladesh—will hold talks next week to prepare for a summit meeting.

A Foreign Office spokesman said today that the preparatory talks would begin Wednesday at Murree, a resort area 30 miles from Islamabad. On Tuesday, an emissary of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of India will arrive to meet with a representative of President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto of Pakistan.

India's representative will be Durga Prasad Dhar, chairman of the Foreign Ministry's Policy Planning Committee. Pakistan will be represented by Aziz Ahmed, secretary-general at the Foreign Office, assisted by Rafi Raza, special assistant to the president.

Agenda for Meeting

They will prepare an agenda for a meeting between Mrs. Gandhi and Mr. Bhutto and decide when and where the summit talks would take place. Well-informed sources have said previously that there could be held in New Delhi in the first half of May.

The spokesman said that Pakistan would suggest that high on the agenda should go the questions of repatriating 90,000 Pakistanis held prisoners of war by India, repatriation of Bengalis from West Pakistan to Bangladesh and the evacuation of camps of territory along Pakistan's border taken by India in the December war.

There are estimated to be 400,000 Bengalis living in Pakistan, most of them former government employees in East Pakistan and their dependents. They include nearly 28,000 members of the armed forces who were serving in West Pakistan when the war broke out.

The spokesman did not say whether the agenda would include a peace treaty and restoration of normal relations between India and Pakistan or Pakistan's recognition of Bangladesh.

Semyonov Away, SALT Session Postponed Again

HLSINKI, April 20 (UPI).—The Strategic Arms Limitation Talks were postponed today for the second time this week, presumably because the Soviet delegation chief was not back from his consultations in Moscow.

Conference sources said talks were continuing between the special working groups set up to advance the nuclear arms negotiations. They said the formal sessions had merely been postponed and "one should not read anything dramatic into it."

The Soviet chief negotiator, Vladimir S. Semyonov, was expected back today from Moscow, but was not aboard a flight from Moscow nor on the Moscow train. He went to Moscow at the end of last week.

Communist sources said that the Soviet Union and the United States were determined to reach an agreement on limiting nuclear weapons and that the recent flare-up of the war in Vietnam had not affected these efforts.

Wallace Puts A Stipulation To Democrats

He'll Support Party If It 'Respects' Him

By George Lardner Jr.
FORT WAYNE, Ind., April 20 (AP)—Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace said yesterday that he would support the presidential nominee of the Democratic party, "unless they treat me bad at the convention" in Miami Beach this July.

Gov. Wallace disavowed any plans for a third-party candidacy even if he should get the cold shoulder. In case of a snub, Gov. Wallace indicated to a news conference here that he might just sit out the campaign and let President Nixon coast to victory in November.

"They can't win without the people that support me and they know it," he said. Southern Democrat said of the Democrats, "I may just, as they say in the country, let it lie out. I'd go down and sit around the Confederate Monument in Clayton, Alabama."

Denies Any Deal
Gov. Wallace was somewhat vague, as usual, about what the Democratic party would have to do to make him happy—short of handing him the nomination. But he insisted, vehemently, that he had made no deal with Mr. Nixon to undercut the Democratic vote. "I got more of a sense of history than to make a deal with somebody," Gov. Wallace said.

"I'll let them deal with me. . . . You think I'm running around here in this heat for Nixon? . . . Hell, unless they treat me bad at the convention, I'm not about to bolt the party. I will support the Democratic nominee unless they treat me bad at the convention."

The 52-year-old governor said he felt confident that the party would accord him unaccustomed respect.

"Already," he asserted, "the [Democratic] platform committee wants to come up with something that's not offensive to me."

Such an accommodation would presumably have to include concessions to Gov. Wallace on school busing, commitments to tax reforms to which most of the other Democratic candidates have dedicated themselves anyway, and perhaps some swipes in the party platform at welfare laxity and foreign aid. But beyond that, Gov. Wallace made clear, the party would have to treat him "with deference."

McCloskey Backs McGovern
BOSTON, April 20 (AP)—Rep. Paul N. McCloskey, the California Republican who ran as an anti-war rival of President Nixon before dropping out of the presidential race, skipped over party lines yesterday and endorsed Democrat George McGovern.

Rep. McCloskey's endorsement of the South Dakota senator in the Massachusetts primary next Tuesday was made in a question-and-answer session following a speech by him here denouncing Mr. Nixon's Vietnam policies. "I'm expressing the hope that the citizens of Massachusetts in both parties vote for the leading peace candidates," Rep. McCloskey said. "I don't think there is any question that Senator McGovern is the leading peace candidate."

Speaking to blue-collar workers yesterday in Columbus, Ohio, Sen. McGovern predicted victory in Massachusetts and a strong showing in the same day in Pennsylvania, and said he will seek an industrial-state breakthrough for his candidacy by making an all-out bid in the May 2 Ohio primary.

He also said he thinks the Vietnam war has replaced the economy as the top campaign issue, at least temporarily.

Army's Senior Negro For the First Time, a Black Will Command a Division

WASHINGTON, April 20 (UPI)—A black general was named yesterday to command an Army division for the first time in American history.

An Army announcement said Maj. Gen. Frederic Ellis Davison, 54, would take command of the Eighth Infantry Division in Europe in a few months. The Army has 13 divisions.

There have been many complaints that although the promotion opportunities for black officers in the services were now great, too few were being posted as commanding officers of large combat units, but were being relegated to staff jobs as finance officers or quartermasters. In such posts they would have few white troops under them.

Gen. Davison, who became a brigadier general in 1968 and a major general last April, is the senior black in the armed forces. Five other Negroes serve as generals or admirals and two other blacks—a father-son team—preceded Gen. Davison to star rank before they retired.

Gen. Davison was born and reared in Washington, D.C., and received both bachelor's and master's degrees in science from the city's Howard University, often called the Black Harvard. He entered the Army in 1939 and served in Italy in World War II, rising to the rank of captain, a relatively high rank for a negro in the days of the segregated service—before the end of the war.

Maj. Gen. Frederic E. Davison

Gen. Davison's specialty is personnel matters. Since last fall, he has been deputy chief of staff for Seventh Army personnel in Europe, an area the Army only recently considered a cauldron of racial frictions.

Indicted N.J. Congressman Accuses FBI of Corruption

By Richard L. Madden

WASHINGTON, April 20 (NYT)—Rep. Cornelius E. Gallagher, D., N.J., charged yesterday that the FBI sought to "blackmail" him into quitting Congress after he refused to help J. Edgar Hoover in a feud with the late Robert F. Kennedy.

The seven-term Congressman, who was indicted by a federal grand jury last week on charges of income tax evasion, perjury and conspiracy, made his charges in an hour-long speech on the House floor.

Rep. Gallagher charged that there was "corruption at the highest level" of the FBI and said that Mr. Hoover, the bureau's director, should resign.

He also declared that Carlita D. de Loach, a former assistant director of the FBI, sought to spread a "monstrous lie" about

Rep. Gallagher's wife and that Roy M. Cohn, a New York City lawyer, had "acted as a conduit to bring the hideous story of my wife to me."

No FBI Comment

A spokesman for the FBI said that the bureau would have no comment on Rep. Gallagher's charges. Mr. de Loach, who is now a vice-president of PepsiCo, Inc., said:

"I won't dignify the congressman's charges with a statement. The congressman is under indictment. The facts speak for themselves."

After a newsmen read parts of Rep. Gallagher's speech to Mr. Cohn, he issued the following statement:

"The FBI never asked me to deliver any message or threat to Congressman Gallagher and I never did. The congressman's incomprehensible statement today must be viewed in light of the extreme distress which he is obviously experiencing."

Rep. Gallagher reiterated in his speech that he will seek re-election this year and that he expected to be vindicated of the indictment.

2 N.J. Troopers Charged in Case Of Mistreatment

TRENTON, N.J., April 20 (AP)—State police, reportedly investigating several charges of harassment of long-haired youths by state policemen, indicted two New Jersey state troopers yesterday on charges that they branded a youth with hot metal while questioning him about possible narcotics violations.

The troopers, Thomas Brabowski and Dennis Wiegman, were charged with misconduct in office and with aiding and abetting in the alleged mistreatment of Earl Harris, 19.

State Police Superintendent David B. Kelly said the alleged mistreatment took place in March. Mr. Harris asserted that he was stopped by the troopers while driving, and ordered to proceed to a State Police barracks at Laureton. There he was beaten and then branded three times on the buttocks with one trooper's triangular metal insignia, heated until it was red hot.

Organization's Chief Concedes

'Four or Five' USO Ex-Employees in Fraud

NEW YORK, April 20 (NYT)—The head of the United Service Organizations has revealed that "preliminary findings" indicated that four or five former employees had been involved in alleged financial irregularities.

Francis L. Sampson, a retired Army major general who is president of the USO, said that the organization for the last month had been conducting its own investigation.

"The alleged irregularities," he said, "have to do principally with certain individuals allegedly using certain USO clubs in Vietnam as a conduit for converting black-market money into U.S. dollars." Gen. Sampson's statement followed by four days the disclosure in Washington that the Department of Defense was investigating the worldwide activities of the organization because of reports of fraud by some of its personnel.

Fraud Is Denied
A Pentagon source said last Friday that the investigation centered on the black-market sale of U.S. currency and the defrauding of servicemen of thousands of dollars in South Vietnam.

Gen. Sampson's statement, while conceding that "four or possibly five former USO employees" had been involved in alleged black-market financial activities, denied that servicemen had been defrauded. He said:

"No funds contributed to the USO by the public, either directly or through United Funds, have been misappropriated or used improperly, and no serviceman was in any way damaged, defrauded or denied the services he could expect from the USO by the alleged activities."

Gen. Sampson said that those involved either resigned or their jobs were terminated. He said that the organization was re-examining its administrative procedures and asking its club directors around the world to have their operations audited by local military commands.

"We are prepared," the general said, "to take whatever additional action is indicated by the investigation and we are confident that our stewardship will continue to merit the trust of the American people."

Two Ex-Aides Accused
WASHINGTON, April 20 (AP)—A congressman released two USO girls' allegations yesterday that one of the organization's former directors in Vietnam was involved in sales to the black market and the theft of soldiers' gift packages.

Rep. Lee Aspin, D., Wis., placed in the Congressional Record their statements to members of Rep. Aspin's staff and said he would provide transcripts for the Pentagon. The girls were not named.

One of the girls told an Aspin aide in a recorded interview that an investigation of her story by the Military Inspector General's Office in Saigon led to the firing of Robert Rawson as coordinator of USOs in South Vietnam's

CIA Rules Out Prosecution of Former Agent

'All We Want Is for This Guy to Shut Up'

By Jim Mann

WASHINGTON, April 20 (WP)—A spokesman for the Central Intelligence Agency yesterday ruled out the possibility that the CIA will seek a criminal prosecution of former agent Victor L. Marchetti for allegedly disclosing agency secrets.

"We're not going to do anything like that, for heaven's sake," the CIA spokesman said. "All we want is for this guy to shut up. It's a one-time thing, I think."

Last Tuesday, the Justice Department, acting on behalf of the CIA, obtained a temporary court order preventing Mr. Marchetti from writing about CIA activities, as he had planned under a contract with the publishing house of Alfred A. Knopf.

The order also requires Mr. Marchetti to show the CIA anything he writes about the subject of intelligence, even if it is fictional, within 30 days before its release, and orders Mr. Marchetti to return to the CIA any documents he might have taken when he quit the agency.

The former agent said that the book he plans is not yet written. He has just finished his reading and research for it, he said. He envisions the book as "at times apologetic, at times critical" of the CIA.

Mr. Marchetti has already written a novel about the CIA called "The Rope Dancer." He said yesterday that he submitted a copy of the book to the CIA in advance. The agency had no official comment, he said.

The grounds on which the Justice Department obtained the court order is that Mr. Marchetti, when hired by the CIA in 1955, signed a "secret" agreement preventing him from disclosing information about agency activities without clearance from the director of the CIA.

Abortions in Britain

LONDON, April 20 (AP)—More than 30,000 foreign women, the greatest number of them from West Germany, had abortions in Britain in the year ending last January, the British government announced. A government spokesman in the House of Commons said 30,134 abortions were carried out on foreign women. There were 13,529 from West Germany, 11,529 from France and 2,075 from Belgium.

Brandt Opens 2-Day Parley With Heath

Accord Is Reported On Goals of Summit

LONDON, April 20 (Reuters).—Chancellor Willy Brandt of West Germany and Prime Minister Edward Heath agreed today that the 10-nation European summit meeting in Paris this October should seek to reach concrete decisions on steps toward European economic and monetary union.

They expressed this view at two hours of talks marking the opening of their two-day summit meeting here.

Informed sources said the talks centered on East-West relations, Middle East problems and the future development of the European Common Market.

The two leaders met at Mr. Heath's residence at 10 Downing Street, 90 minutes after Mr. Brandt arrived by air from Bonn or talks that started with both sides saying they had a common view on world affairs, and no ill-will problems.

One interpreter and one adviser from each side were present at the talks.

Informed sources said East-West relations were reviewed in the light of Mr. Brandt's policy of improving relations with Eastern European countries. Britain supports this policy.

The review covered prospects for a European security conference repeatedly proposed by the Soviet Union and other Warsaw Pact countries.

In an airport press conference, Mr. Brandt spoke of the common basic approach of Britain and West Germany.

"The enlargement of Europe will open a new chapter in the history of our common continent," he added.

After today's opening talks the chancellor flew by helicopter with his Norwegian-born wife to the dinner guest of Queen Elizabeth at Windsor Castle near London, where the Brandts will stay overnight.

Italy and Switzerland today signed a convention aimed at preserving Lakes Maggiore and Lugano from water pollution.

The convention was signed at the Italian Foreign Ministry by Ambassador Jean de Rham from Switzerland, and Angelo Salis, under secretary at the Foreign Ministry, for Italy.

Italian Official Sees 2d Vote If Center Loses 1st Election

ROME, April 20 (Reuters).—Italian Interior Minister Mariano Rumor said today that another general election might have to be held if the results of the election next month made it impossible for a government to be formed without Communist or neo-Fascist support.

Mr. Rumor, a former premier and ex-secretary of the ruling Christian Democratic party, agreed with a recent statement by the present party secretary, Arnaldo Forlani, that if Italy was "ungovernable" after the May 7 election, parliament might have to be dissolved again.

"I think that Forlani agrees with me that the country will be ungovernable if there is a situation in which the only majority possible for the Christian Democrats is linked, directly or indirectly, with the Fascists or the Communists," he said in an interview with the weekly magazine L'Espresso.

Political observers said that such a situation might arise if the Christian Democrats and other centrist parties failed to obtain enough seats to form a majority coalition government.

"An agreement with the Fascists is absolutely impossible," Mr. Rumor said. "As for the Communists, there are too many irreconcilable differences between them and us Christian Democrats."

Meanwhile, a bomb exploded here during the night outside a warehouse containing Christian Democratic election posters and manifestos, police said today.

2d Vote Needed To Pick Wilson Deputy Leader

LONDON, April 20 (AP).—Edward Short, a schoolmaster turned politician, tonight emerged as the favorite in a secret ballot for the deputy leadership of Britain's opposition Labor party—but a second vote will be needed to settle the issue.

Mr. Short, 59, a middle-of-the-roader, defeated leftist Michael Foot by 111 votes to 110. Right-leaning Anthony Crosland trailed with 61 of the votes cast by 1,200 members of the House of Commons.

Because he failed to register an overall majority of the votes, Mr. Short, who was minister for education and science in former Prime Minister Harold Wilson's Labor government, will have to fight it out once again in a straight contest with Mr. Foot. No date was set for the second ballot.

French Poll Shows Decline In 'Yes' Votes in Referendum

By James Goldsborough

PARIS, April 20 (UPI).—A public opinion poll published today, three days before the nation votes on the enlargement of the Common Market, showed that less than half of France's registered voters will vote "yes" to the poll, the last of three taken by SOFRES organization, showed an increase in the numbers of voters planning to abstain and vote "no" and a decrease in the numbers planning to approve community enlargement and the "new perspectives that are opening for Europe."

The poll, published in Le Figaro, indicated that 48 percent of the electorate planned to approve, 35 percent to abstain or cast a blank ballot and 17 percent to vote "no." These figures had changed from 57, 39 and 14 percent shown only two weeks ago.

Elysée Palace spokesmen did not show any great alarm over the drop, indicating that it still was a healthy margin of approval. There is no question, however, that they would like to see the margin nudge over 50 percent, giving President Georges Pompidou an absolute majority on his first referendum.

Several commentators have pointed out that Gen. Charles de Gaulle won only a simple ma-

Black Congressmen Lose Round in Court on Chrome

WASHINGTON, April 20 (UPI).—A U.S. district judge today rejected a motion by 13 black congressmen and others to issue a temporary restraining order prohibiting the use or further importation of Rhodesian chrome in the United States.

Judge Aubrey E. Robinson set April 28 for hearings on a preliminary injunction.

Nineteen barges of Rhodesian chrome destined for the Union Carbide facilities in Ohio are en route up the Mississippi River and the earliest the chrome could be used would be April 27, a company lawyer said.

Another cargo for the Foote Mineral Company has reached the U.S., but its status is uncertain.

The suit was announced Wednesday by Charles E. Diggs, Democrat, of Michigan. The suit names Treasury Secretary John B. Connally and other U.S. officials, Foote Mineral Co., and Union Carbide.

Appearing for the plaintiffs was Joel Carlson, an exiled Johannesburg lawyer who is a plaintiff himself. Mr. Carlson, a member of the International Commission of Jurists in Geneva, outlined Rhodesian history, calling for economic sanctions against the Ian Smith regime in Salisbury.

The major basis of the complaint, however, was aimed at a congressional amendment which allowed importation of goods from Rhodesia, United Nations sanctions notwithstanding, if the goods were strategic and critical and obtained with restrictions from Communist countries.

Attorney Morton Davis said: "We take strategic and critical as having to do with its use and shortage or supply. All this has to do with importing chrome so that American kitchens can be supplied with stainless steel cookware."

Top Security Chief to Head Romania's 'Super' Ministry

VIENNA, April 20 (AP).—Top Romanian security chief Ion Stanculescu today was appointed head of the new super ministry labeled Ministry of Home Affairs in a move which may mean a tightening of political control in the country.

The appointment, reported by the Romanian news agency Agerpres, came as a surprise because the Council of State Security, of which Mr. Stanculescu had been chairman, appeared to have undergone a shake-up recently that was regarded as having re-focused on him.

In the wake of the shake-up, the planned merger of the state security services with the Interior Ministry was announced two days ago. It had been assumed that Interior Minister Corneliu Onescu would head the new ministry.

The Agerpres announcement made no mention what other position, if any, Mr. Onescu got. Linked to Onescu

The shake-up in the security services had been linked at the time to the ouster of Communist Central Committee secretary Vasile Patilinea, who was responsible for national defense, state security, police and justice authorities in the committee.

Mr. Patilinea's demotion to minister of forestry administration and building materials, coincided with unconfirmed Western press reports of the execution of Gen. Ion Serb for spying for the Soviet Union.

Gen. Serb was secretary of the National Assembly's standing commission on defense problems. Agerpres said the assembly today approved changes in the composition of some of the assembly's standing commissions, but gave no details.

The assembly also approved the reshuffles in the cabinet ordered by the Central Committee on Tuesday, including the appoint-

Senators' Advice: Plant Garden, Fight Inflation

WASHINGTON, April 20 (AP).—The Senate approved and sent to the House yesterday a resolution urging American families to plant vegetable gardens as an anti-inflation move.

The resolution said that by raising their own vegetables, families not only could save on food costs but improve their nutrition, get healthful exercise and have fun.

Sen. James E. Allen, D., Ala., introduced the resolution and obtained unanimous consent to have it brought up without waiting for action by the Senate Agriculture Committee, to which it had been referred.

Mrs. Meir Going to Romania Before Nixon's Moscow Visit

JERUSALEM, April 20 (Reuters).—Israeli Premier Golda Meir will go on an official visit to Romania next month after an invitation seen here as part of a Romanian initiative for a new Middle East peace drive.

The invitation, by Romanian Premier Ion Gheorghe Maurer, and Mrs. Meir's acceptance were announced officially today.

It will be the first visit by an Israeli premier to any East European capital.

Officials here indicated that the visit will take place early next month. Timing is regarded as important, since Mrs. Meir's talks in Bucharest will precede President Nixon's visit to Moscow, where the Middle East issue is bound to be discussed.

AMMAN, April 20 (UPI).—King Hussein returned to Amman last night after a visit to the United States, which lasted nearly a month and included talks with Washington officials, and a medical checkup for heart trouble, government sources said.

Mrs. Meir Going to Romania Before Nixon's Moscow Visit

JERUSALEM, April 20 (Reuters).—Israeli Premier Golda Meir will go on an official visit to Romania next month after an invitation seen here as part of a Romanian initiative for a new Middle East peace drive.

The invitation, by Romanian Premier Ion Gheorghe Maurer, and Mrs. Meir's acceptance were announced officially today.

It will be the first visit by an Israeli premier to any East European capital.

Officials here indicated that the visit will take place early next month. Timing is regarded as important, since Mrs. Meir's talks in Bucharest will precede President Nixon's visit to Moscow, where the Middle East issue is bound to be discussed.

Greece Ousting Bonn Envoy For Aiding Professor's Flight

ATHENS, April 20 (Reuters).—The Greek government today demanded the recall of West German ambassador to Greece Peter Limbourg, whom it accused of having organized the escape abroad of a Greek political prisoner.

A Foreign Ministry statement said George Mangakis left for West Germany last Saturday a few hours after his provisional release from an 18-year jail sentence for reasons of health.

The statement followed a protest delivered two days ago to Mr. Limbourg by Greek Deputy Foreign Minister Christian Katsopoulos-Palamas.

Mr. Limbourg suffered a minor heart attack yesterday and is reported to be resting. It was not known how soon he would be able to travel.

Basic Principles

The Foreign Ministry statement today accused the ambassador of violating Greece's sovereign rights as well as basic principles of international law and bilateral obligations.

"The organization by the ambassador of the escape abroad of a Greek subject and a convict whose sentence had been temporarily suspended, and whose departure abroad had been banned, constitutes a violation of the fundamental principle of international law concerning the status of diplomats," the statement said.

"The activities of West German Ambassador Peter Limbourg for the escape of Mr. Mangakis and his wife, which culminated with his presence at the airport to see him off, constitute a flagrant violation of his basic obligation to respect the laws of the sovereign state of which he is a guest and to abstain from any interference in its internal affairs," the statement added.

Hijacker for TV Out on Lower Bail

LOS ANGELES, April 20 (AP).—Ricardo Chavez Ortiz, charged with hijacking an airplane, was freed on bail yesterday after 13 persons contributed to his $25,000 bail, court officials said.

The bail originally had been set at $500,000 but was reduced by U.S. Magistrate Ralph J. Giffen.

Chavez Ortiz, 36, was arrested last Thursday at Los Angeles International Airport after hijacking and holding a Frontier Airlines Boeing-737 for more than six hours.

He surrendered to FBI agents after his demands for a television interview were met.

Senators' Advice: Plant Garden, Fight Inflation

WASHINGTON, April 20 (AP).—The Senate approved and sent to the House yesterday a resolution urging American families to plant vegetable gardens as an anti-inflation move.

The resolution said that by raising their own vegetables, families not only could save on food costs but improve their nutrition, get healthful exercise and have fun.

Sen. James E. Allen, D., Ala., introduced the resolution and obtained unanimous consent to have it brought up without waiting for action by the Senate Agriculture Committee, to which it had been referred.

MUSIC IN GENEVA

An Old Hand Stages Handel's Oratorio 'Belshazzar'

By David Stevens

GENEVA (IHT)—Herbert Graf is an old hand at gaining or regaining for the musical stage works that either were not originally so conceived or which seemed ill-adapted to the theater, and his current staging here of Handel's oratorio "Belshazzar" is admirable testimony to his long experience in this field.

This sort of thing is not just antiquarianism, but a realization of the flexibility of the theater that was largely lost in the 19th century. Graf's own highly successful staging in a Salzburg church of Cavallieri's dramatic oratorio "Rappresentatione di Anima e di Corpo" (circa 1600) is one aspect of this, and another is found in this century with works of Schenker, Frank Martin, Penderecki and others. Even in the hidebound 19th century, the original Berlioz produced his "Damnation of Faust," a "dramatic cantata" that is arguably his best "opera," although it took half a century to reach the stage.

Graf is also an old hand at "Belshazzar." He first produced it in Breslau in 1927, when Handel was enjoying a renaissance in Germany. He knows the pitfalls—among them a musical and vocal style difficult to realize today and, in the theater, a telescoping of time elements and scenic conceptions of an imaginary grandeur impossible to realize naturalistically.

He also knows the advantages. Besides the glorious music there is also Handel's genuine dramatic instinct and practical theater experience. The composer's Biblical oratorios came mainly after his long string of Italian operas, but he was able to leave behind many of the conventions that make his operas so problematic today, and the chorus gained an important role.

For this production, Annelies Corradi designed a basic set of an open stage-level area in front of a pair of huge carved doors, the whole embraced by a set of stairways, ramps and platforms that provided a flexible acting area. Above this was a shown a series of effective projections that provided changes of venue and atmosphere. They included pompously monumental structures, exemplifying the decadence and vanity of Belshazzar's Babylon; symbols and images of various deities, and—at a key dramatic point—the mysterious hand and its ominous graffiti, "Mene, Mene, Tekel, Upharsin," forecasting the dissolute king's downfall.

Graf used this stage flexibly, with a judicious mixture of stylization and restrained realism and devising a series of fluid and generally effective tableaux—although the traffic got a bit thick in some of the massed scenes. Kurt Jooss's angular choreography lent a vaguely Oriental and ritualistic air that was not out of place.

Musical matters were in Karl Richter's hands, and his hands were full with a cast of singers of varying degrees of Handelian expertise and large choral forces (those of the Grand Théâtre, augmented by amateur ensembles from Bulle and Lausanne) spread out from the pit to the farthest reaches of the stage.

But, although some of the complex choral sections tended to slide apart at the seams at the second performance Saturday, Richter did impose more than a minimum of stylistic uniformity and, above all, gave the musical performance a flexibility and vitality so often missing in baroque music.

The work was given in the original English and benefited from the excellent diction of William Cochrane, a stalwart Belshazzar, and Benjamin Luxon, a sympathetic Cyrus (and a deep-voiced one, rather than an alto), while Josephine Barrow as Nitocris, the king's mother, brought the most authentic Handelian style to the cast, and thereby the most moving characterization. Peter Legger as Daniel and Victor de Narké as Gobrias were rich-voiced, although more conventionally "operatic" and less at home in English.

The production will have its final two performances April 22 and 23.

Lord Olivier's Successor Named—Peter Hall

LONDON, April 20 (AP)—Laurence Olivier will be replaced as director of Britain's National Theatre when the company moves to its new site in 1974.

The board of directors said Tuesday night that Peter Hall, former managing director of the Royal Shakespeare Company, will join the National Theatre next year with the title of director-designate.

The board recommended that Lord Olivier be named honorary president of the National Theatre.

The new home of the company is to be inaugurated on the South Bank of the Thames River in London in 1974.

The board said it expected Lord Olivier to continue acting with the company after his retirement as director.

Sunken Treasure Auctioned in London

LONDON, April 20 (UPI)—Coins, cannon and such domestic items as pewter plates and spoons were auctioned at Sotheby's Tuesday after resting on the bottom of the sea since 1743.

The highest price paid in the sale was £2,000 for a 16th century cannon. The sale total was £36,987.

The articles were recovered from the wreck of the Hollandia, a Dutch East-Indiaman which sank off the Isles of Sicily in 1743.

Romanovs—All Glitter And No Life and as Nicholas and Alexandra surrounded in English, the household scenes are acceptable. But what of a Rasputin who speaks in Royal-Academy-of-Dramatic-Art tones and a Lenin who resembles Clement Attlee and has a Krupskaya (Vivien Pickles) to match? The palace balls, the Bloody Sunday massacre of the protesting mob, the assassination of Rasputin, the military defeats at the front and the Bolshevik takeover are in the fashion of revue tableaux as though Eisenstein's dynamic montage in "October" had never been seen.

There are conflicting reports of the fate that the czar and his family met at the hands of the revolutionaries. A relatively mild and humane version has been selected, though a more lurid one would have served as a powerful finale theatrically.

The acting, under routine direction, is of a waxwork unity. Michael Jayston is the weak-willed czar and Janet Suzman the miscalculating zarina. The company has a star-studded supporting cast—with Laurence Olivier, Michael Redgrave, Eric Porter, Jack Hawkins, Irene Worth and others appearing and disappearing here and there, though their presence is unable to lend the script additional substance.

"Nicholas and Alexandra" has cost millions and pictorially it has a million-dollar look. It glitters dazzlingly, but it fails to come to life.

Entertainment in New York

NEW YORK, April 20 (IHT)—This is how The New York Times rates new movies:

"The Policeman," an Israeli-made comedy written, directed and co-produced (with Itzhak Kol) by Ephraim Kishon got good marks from Howard Thompson: "This time he (Kishon, who also did 'Sallah') has devised a simple, comical but heart-tugging field day for a master clown. If Shay K. Ophir has not yet rocketed to the Clapin plateau for general audiences, he is well known to Hebrew-speaking audiences. And this subtitled import should add considerably to his reputation as a slyly subtle charmer." Ophir is cast as a veteran policeman, about to retire after 20 years of harmless bumbling, who needs just one good arrest in order to stay on the force with a renewed contract. "As policemen go," Thompson comments, "in Jaffa or anywhere else, Mr. Ophir is certainly the kindest and sweetest you'll ever meet."

"Silent Running," directed by Douglas Trumbull, screenplay by Derle Washburn, Mike Cimino and Steve Boibo, has its ups and downs, according to Vincent Canby. It's "no jerry-built science fiction film, but it's a little too simple-minded to be consistently entertaining. This is especially true when it is drumming home its perfectly reasonable pleas for sane conservation policies by having the voice of Joan Baez, on the soundtrack, belting out space-folk songs that sound as if they had been composed by a rotten computer." The year is 2008, "sometime after the earth has been defoliated, its valleys filled in and its mountains leveled, when it's 75 degrees everywhere..." when Freeman Lowell, chief astro-botanist on an American space freighter who sets out toward the unknown in company with two robots, Huey and Dewey. There are some "beautiful placed it, they seek to recover it by helicopter raids on precious station houses, hypnotizing bank attendants and threatening cheap lawyers with maltreatment. It is fast, furious and funny stuff. Peter Yates, who also directed "Bullitt," mixes suspense with belly laughs. There is an amusing cameo by Zero Mostel as the pompous, dishonest legal eagle.

If science fiction enraptures you, there is "The Andromeda Strain" (at the Elysees-Lincoln III and at the Saint Germain Village in English). A micro cell, imported from space, destroys an Arizona town. In an underground laboratory, a team of nuclear experts study two survivors, seeking to discover the mysteries of the germ. Robert Wise, in his sagacious, succeeds in trapping our attention in this weird, modern fantasy and brightens it with interesting technique, inspired by the use of color in recent Japanese films.

Rugged American Individualism—feasts of fried eggs, flapjacks and all—makes a comeback in "Sometimes a Great Notion" (at the Emmeville in English), directed by yet another actor, Paul Newman (who made his directing debut in 1958 with "Hombre").

Out in the majestic wilds of Oregon, a self-sufficient family of woodcutters refuses to comply with union rules and suffer some testing reverses. Father Henry Fonda, as rugged and sharp-spoken as they come, bites the dust and one of his nephews is crowned. But Paul Newman and Michael Sarrazin, as his wayward half-brother, returned home to roost, represent the younger generation that is determined to carry on, come hell or high water.

The film, though its philosophy and its dramaturgy may be old-fashioned, is entertaining and excellently acted, especially by Lee Remick as the lonely brute of a preoccupied woodsman. Newman as a director appears to have taken a course by Howard Hawks.

fully eerie and majestic special effects—particularly its spaceships that look like horizontal Eiffel Towers attached to gigantic oil tankers. Canby says: "However the joys of watching them prove 'ultimately exhausting'."

"Lost," the film version of the late Joe Orton's second play is "very bitter, very funny farce" as Vincent Canby's opinion: does not do justice to the original material. Though there is still enough Orton to make the movie "quite funny," Canby says, director Silvio Narizzano has "not simply opened it up, he has also put it on the rack. Not only does Narizzano show all the actors outside the hotel, but he cross-cuts between scenes of simultaneous action, and breaks up individual scenes into close-up, medium shots and long shots. The effect is one of 'constant, nearly fatal interruption.' It puts a strain on the performers, according to Canby, who 'lives them in spite of these handicaps.' Lee Remick and Richard Attenborough head the cast.

"The Calpepper Cattle Co.," directed by Dick Richards, has its central quality "a kind of arty, laconic simplicity." Roger Greenspan comments, but lacks the deeper meanings of all the really good Westerns, which have tended toward a "high degree of complexity—not of surface texture, but of meaning—and their views of human relationships have suggested worlds within worlds of moral and pastoral responsibility." In this respect, the present film "seems mostly vacant behind its facade of atmospheric realism." Set in Texas sometime after the Civil War, it concerns the adventures of young Ben Mockridge (Gary Grimes), a cook's helper in a cattle drive.

"My Uncle Antoine," directed by Claude Jutra, screenplay (French with English subtitles) by Clément Perron, is set in Quebec's asbestos mining country in the 1940s. The film is about the coming of age of Benoit (Jacques Gagnon), a "wide-eyed, comic-faced young man who lives and works in the general store of his uncle, boozey old Antoine (Jean Duceppe), who doubles as the community undertaker." Vincent Canby reports: "When I first saw 'My Uncle Antoine,' I had the dim impression that I'd seen it all before... not only because the movie explores familiar emotional landscapes, but because it explores them as if by guided tour... so calculated to evoke humor, nostalgia, sadness and regret that it leaves very little room for self-discovery."

EEC Parley On Industry

By David Haworth

VENICE, April 20 (AP-DJ)—Leading Common Market businessmen, trade unionists and civil servants heard a gloomy report about the EEC's industrial and technology programs when they began a three-day conference here today on the future of European industry.

The conference is an attempt to put more vigor into industrial policy which is only sketchily defined in the Treaty of Rome. Litterio Spinnelli, the Brussels commissioner responsible for industry, told delegates the EEC's present institutions "are not in a position to take on new tasks" and said an increase in the community's budget is essential if progress is to be made.

Legislative and financial decisions for launching industrial Europe will have to be taken urgently, he said, if there is to be any hope of rivaling American industrial and economic power. The conference is intended as a "working house for ideas on which proposals can be based for agreement at the Paris summit meeting this fall which will be attended by EEC prime ministers and those of the four countries about to enter the community."

There was a consensus today on four main points emerging from the discussions:

• That a European company law and common policies to encourage cross-border company mergers which will increase industry's capacity to compete against U.S. and Japanese interests should be implemented.

• Technical know-how and research in such industries as computers and aircraft should be freely exchanged between EEC countries.

• Pollution control should be organized on a community-wide basis.

• Systems for joint research and development in atomic energy should be laid down.

U.S. Rules Transformers Being Dumped

WASHINGTON, April 20 (AP-DJ)—The Tariff Commission ruled unanimously today that imports of heavy electrical transformers from four European countries and Japan are injuring U.S. producers. The anti-dumping act decision applies to imports from Britain, France, Italy, Switzerland and Japan.

The Treasury earlier ruled that imports from these countries, valued at several million dollars a year, were unfairly priced in violation of U.S. anti-dumping laws. The Tariff Commission ruling clears the way for the Treasury to impose anti-dumping duties.

Shell Outlook 'Very Disappointing'

The year 1972 "cannot but be very disappointing" for the Royal Dutch/Shell group of companies, reports Sir David Barran, chairman of Shell Transport & Trading Co. Sir David says that because of the poor outlook capital spending plans are being reviewed and operating costs are being cut. He said the poor prospects are due to inadequate rates of economic growth in major markets. As previously announced, the group had a balance of net income for calendar 1971 of $347.9 million, down from $366.7 million in 1970. The 1971 figure included a non-recurring charge of $22.5 million arising from the world currency realignment. Sir David says first quarter 1972 profit figures are not yet available, but he adds, "Volume figures on which we have got some fairly good indications suggest there has been no increase, and perhaps a decrease, in demand as compared with the first quarter of last year."

Omron Offsets Curbs in Japan

Omron Tateki Electronics of Japan says it plans to double desk-top calculator production at its Mexican subsidiary and is considering establishing a calculator facility in Singapore to offset recent moves by the Japanese government to restrict calculator exports. The company says its Mexican unit is to increase output to 20,000 calculators per month at an unspecified time from 10,000 units per month at present. The Mexican company mainly supplies the United States, Central American and South American markets. Officials add that Omron will study the investment situation in Singapore, where a plant may be established to serve the European market. Earlier this week, the government announced that broad agreement had been reached with the nation's electronics industry to set controls on exports of five products, including desk-top calculators, destined for the European market.

Hitachi to Make TV Sets in Canada

Hitachi, a major Japanese machine manufacturer, says it will assemble its color television sets and market them in Canada from mid-June. Officials say the plan is aimed at forestalling a growing move in Canada against the imports of Japanese electronic home appliances. Hitachi's sales subsidiary in Montreal will be used for the project, officials add.

Soviet Union Discovers Iron Ore

The Soviet Union reports the discovery of an iron ore deposit in the Ural Mountains with reserves estimated at 38 million tons. The government news agency Tass says the find was made at a site seven miles from Magnitogorsk, the country's largest metallurgical center. The agency says the mine will be operating by the end of this year and is expected to yield two million tons of ore annually.

Kawasaki Steel Cutting Dividend

Kawasaki Steel reports it will declare a dividend of 150 yen for the half year ending April 30 compared with 2 yen in the preceding six months. It says it expects after-tax profit of 2 billion yen in the latest period on gross sales of 197 billion yen. This would compare with a profit of 3.38 billion on sales of 204.1 billion in the previous half year.

Bank Sees Upturn for German Economy

FRANKFURT, April 20 (Reuters)—The West German economy is gradually overcoming the period of stagnation and is entering a period of renewed growth, the Bundesbank said in its annual report for 1971 today.

The bank noted that over the first few months of 1972, production on a seasonally-adjusted basis showed an upswing with demand increasing and short-time working declining.

While admitting that this trend may have been aided by the unusually mild winter weather as well as the recovery after the engineering strikes of November and December last year, the Bundesbank observed that various factors which had slowed economic growth last year seemed to be having a lesser effect in the early months of this year.

Stock Levels Up
First, the bank suggested that the reduction of inventories, characteristic of last year, had given way to a rebuilding of stock levels.

Also, the surplus on visible and invisible trade has increased notably since the beginning of this year, reflecting a relatively strong rise in exports against a weaker import development. Incoming orders from abroad have increased considerably, it noted.

As a third factor, investments are not expected to weaken again this year. The bank noted that in the industrial sector investments rose during January and February. Although warning that this should not be taken as setting a pattern for the year, it added that the current trend in investment by public authorities or by individuals in property is clearly upward.

It said that prices are expected to rise at a slower rate this year than in 1971, thanks to more favorable opportunities for productivity increases, and cited the government's forecast of a rise in the cost of living index for this year of about 4.5 percent.

However, the bank also counseled that any upturn in the economy could exhaust the slack created by the pause in growth and thus rapidly reduce the chances for a slowing in the upward trend in prices.

As a factor which could impel a new surge in price increases, the Bundesbank cited the high level of public spending planned for this year.

It noted that the total deficit of federal, state and local authorities is likely, according to present plans, to exceed 26 billion deutsche marks—well above the 12-billion DM level which the bank regards as economically "neutral."

Such a deficit level would exhaust the slack in the economy caused by the current under-utilization of productive capacity, the bank warned, calling for a revision of the planned level of public spending.

Provisional figures showed a total of 1,006,144 unemployed, a decrease in the month of 12,148. The number of wholly unemployed in Britain in April totaled 954,963, a decrease in the month of 4,308.

In Britain alone—excluding Northern Ireland—there were 957,654 unemployed, a drop of 13,954, the department said.

The figure represents 4.2 percent of the working population. Wholly unemployed in Britain alone dropped to 911,694, a decrease of 6,907 from March.

The latest move, which is to come into effect May 2, is aimed at those with money to invest.

For saving deposits, the rate on accounts of up to 20 million lire will remain at 1.25 percent, while rates on accounts above this amount will be reduced.

The diversified engineering and shipbuilding concern proposed a final dividend of 2.5 percent, making 4 percent for the year, up from 2.5 percent in 1970. Sales rose 4.4 percent, to 1,180.9 million from 1,133.3 million the previous year.

Vickers Net Higher
LONDON, April 20 (AP-DJ)—Vickers Ltd. pre-tax profit rose 47.6 percent last year, to $2.2 million from $1.5 million in 1970, the company said today.

The diversified engineering and shipbuilding concern proposed a final dividend of 2.5 percent, making 4 percent for the year, up from 2.5 percent in 1970. Sales rose 4.4 percent, to 1,180.9 million from 1,133.3 million the previous year.

Casey Backs Negotiated Rate Tryout For Small Investors

By Philip Greer

NEW YORK, April 20 (WP)—The chairman of the Securities & Exchange Commission yesterday endorsed testing competitive commission charges for small investors.

While explaining that he is not in favor of "cutthroat competition" among stockbrokers, William J. Casey said he thinks "it's appropriate to test negotiated rates at the lower end of the commission scale. He said brokers could be allowed to set their own charges on orders with a value of less than $5,000 or possibly $10,000.

Appearing at a "press conference" held before 1,700 money managers and brokers at the fifth annual institutional investor conference, Mr. Casey stressed that changes in the fixed commission schedule should be made slowly.

Last April, brokers began negotiating rates with their customers on that part of the order that exceeded $500,000 in value. On Monday, the fixed rate system will be eliminated at the $300,000 level.

Membership Issue
WASHINGTON, April 20 (Reuters)—Mr. Casey asked Congress today to resolve the question of institutional stock exchange membership in order to avoid a lengthy court fight.

He told a Senate subcommittee on securities that, unless Congress acted on the issue, the SEC would be forced into the appeals court by regional stock exchanges which oppose the commission's proposed limitations on institutional membership.

Big Board Prices Rise Despite Vietnam Worry

NEW YORK, April 20 (NYT)—The stock market, shrugging off the intensified fighting in Vietnam, gave a good account of itself today. Although a majority of issues declined on the New York Stock Exchange, the Dow Jones industrial average overcame a loss of nearly 8 at 11 a.m. to finish at 969.29 with a gain of 1.51.

Thus, despite continued profit-taking and an assortment of worries, the Dow still hovers close to its 40-month high reached on Tuesday at 968.92.

Alaska Interstate, the big winner on the active list, rose 5 1/2 to 48 3/4 and set a new high. It benefited today from a substantial increase in quarterly earnings. Previously, the stock had been buoyed by brokerage-house recommendations and by reports of a possible combination with another company.

Anacoda, a blue chip that lost its lustre, shined more brightly after showing March-quarter profits of 43 cents a share, compared with the year-ago figure of 5 cents. The copper giant climbed 1 7/8 to 21 1/8 in active trading. It sold at 66 in early 1969.

It was a day when brokerage stocks went down and most automaker issues went up—and a day with a few dramatic price changes.

Dentsply International, the market's best percentage gainer, scooted ahead 6 1/2 to 48 1/2. Dentsply, a leading producer of dental equipment and artificial teeth, said that its plastic sealant designed to aid in the prevention of tooth decay has been classified as "provisionally acceptable" by the American Dental Association council on dental materials and devices. This was regarded as an interim step of approval of a new product by the association.

When the sealant was originally announced last spring, shares of Dentsply rocketed from the 30 level to a record high above 50. This occurred during a period when several health-oriented stocks suddenly acquired glamour in the market.

Peabody-Gallion, whose management forecast an improvement in profits, climbed 3 1/8 to 34 3/4. On the OTC market NASDAQ active issues included North Central Air, 7 1/2, up 1 1/8. BankAmerica, 44 3/8, up 7/8. Allegheny Beverage, 10 1/4, off 1/8. Gulf Oil, 25, off 1/8.

The NASDAQ industrial average gained 0.36 to 141.14. Of the 3,002 issues traded, 710 rose, 554 fell and 1,436 were unchanged. Also firm were General Motors, up 1 to 33 1/4. American Broad-casting Company, 1 3/4, to 69 5/8. Rite Aid, 2 3/8 to 50 3/8, and Viacom International, 5 3/8 to 24 1/4. The latter reported a higher first-quarter net.

Prices were mixed in moderately active trading on the American Stock Exchange. The Amex index edged up 0.01 to 23.30, but declines topped advances, 333 to 431. Turnover was 5.2 million shares, down from 5.72 million yesterday.

U.S. markets are profitable but the competition is tough.

British companies are expanding into the USA. Because the returns can be high. But selling into the mecca of marketing isn't for the faint-hearted; the competition is tough and they are fighting in their own backyard.

Through our London Branch you get direct access to all the commercial banking facilities of our Wall Street headquarters. Complete financial services covering the whole of the USA. Data on your particular US market; its history, present activity and forecast. Location and introduction to agents, distributors, lawyers and consultants. Credit information. Help with planning and execution of mergers or acquisitions. In fact, the whole range.

We are big enough ($1 billion in deposits in London) to give you full international services yet small enough to give you personal attention.

Let Irving be your personal guide to international banking.
